

Legal aid 'deserved'

The parents of Charlie Gard, the severely ill baby at the centre of a life-support court case, should have had legal aid, the judge said. Doctors want to switch the eight-month-old child to palliative care but Chris Gard and Connie Yates want him to be treated in the US. Mr Justice Francis said: "I cannot think of a more obviously deserving case for legal aid." His decision is due to be announced in the High Court on Tuesday.
