

Doctors face first euthanasia trial

Three Belgian doctors have been accused of improperly euthanising an autistic woman.

They are being investigated on suspicion of having "poisoned" Tine Nys in 2010. It is the first time the country has investigated whether or not performing euthanasia might have broken the law since it was legalised in 2002.

File ref 28.11.2018